By Pachole Concepcion

"There are lots of cuties, and pretty girls," gushed Filipino fans, one of the Top 10 finalists of "American Idol" Season 11, when asked of his first impressions upon landing on Philippine soil.

Hogan, 23, joined the rest of the youthful, bubbly "Idols" at a press conference yesterday at the Manila Hotel for their concert on Friday at Smart Araneta Coliseum. The show is the last and only Asian date of the group's 45-city tour of the United States.

Pacquiao, Marquez gun for KO in 4th bout

SENTERY HILLS, California—These compelling bouts in eight years haven't resolved the rivalry between Filipino champion Manny Pacquiao and Mexican dynamic Juan Manuel Marquez, so they're stepping in the ring together for a fourth bout on Dec. 8 at MGM Grand Garden in Las Vegas.

And this time, they're both looking for the only decisive ending in any fight: A knockout KO.

"I want to cause the death of the last three fights," Pacquiao said on Monday. "There's so many people still asking if I won the fight. I think to myself, 'Something is wrong. I have to do it again.' This time, I will make head to head this fight up in the history of boxing. I want to make this fight short. I want to knock him out."

Although they're exchanging a rivalry to now, together in modern boxing, the fighters

Boss' wife at center of raging PDEA row

By Marlon Ramon and Lella B. Salvendy

IT IS A SIN to rip off your boss about his wife's infidelity?

Carlos Galapin raised this question after Malacaling ordered his removal as deputy director general of the Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency (PDEA) last week, without, according to him, any justifiable reason.

Galapin, a retired police superintendent, maintained that his superiors' order was triggered by the information he gave to PDEA Director General Jose Gutierrez Jr. regarding the alleged gambling habits of Gutierrez's wife.

A letter he received on Sept. 14 from Malacaling informed him that President Aquino had lost confidence in him.

"As far as I know, I did not do

Aquino's back channel to China is Trillanes

P-Noy: I prefer to pick up the can

By TJ Bugarin

PRESIDENT Aquino, whose term would end next 2016, hopes that his successor is someone who doesn't kick the can down the road but solves problems.

Speaking at integrity before the country's CEOs, the President said his goal was to restore growth and bequeath a country "that is better off than when we arrived" in 2010.

He said this involved two difficult choices—the right way of doing things and taking a short-cut.

"I am faced with a choice: I can just kick the can down the road, and let the next set of leaders deal with this problem. Or

After all, the politically prudent thing to do would be not to raise the can, but to make any note about something that is, at the moment, not yet an issue," the President said at the 2nd Integrity Summit at the Hotel Intervallencia in Makati City.

DFA head bemoans senator's role in talks

By Gil C. Cabanogian

A TEMPEST is brewing in the country's diplomatic front with Foreign Secretary Albert del Rosario saying his efforts to resolve the lingering standoff with China over disputed territories in the West Philippine Sea were being impeded by a back-room negotiator.

In interviews conducted by the Inquirer, Sen. Antonio Trillanes IV emerged as the negotiator working independently for President Aquino in Beijing.

"I think that while backchanneling has its purpose, in our case it's doing more harm than good. It is important that we speak with one voice on this matter," Del Rosario said in a recent interview.

Del Rosario did not name the supposed spoiler, but Trillanes said the bypass that he felt allowed.

The presence of Trillanes, leader of the Magdalo-group-led 2012 Congressional hearing in Calicut meetings in China since May has raised not a few eyebrows, including that of Senate President Juan Ponce Enrile's.

In a phone interview, Trillanes said, "If Secretary Del Rosario was only close to being effective as a foreign secretary, then there wouldn't be any need for a back channel in the first place."

Trillanes has made no secret about his opinion that Del Rosario is unfit to represent the Philippines on the negotiating table with China because of his allegedly naïve opposition to any peaceful settlement with Beijing and his purported desire to bring the United States in.

PCSO: STL contracts good until June 2013

By Toronto Drejo

AGENTS of small-town lottery (STL), a government-sanctioned numbers game, are not scheduled to stop anytime soon because their contracts with the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office (PCSO) are good until the first half of 2013.

"Their contracts are until June 2013, so they are still there," said PCSO Chair Margarita Aron.

President Aquino announced on Monday that STL would soon be stopped and would be replaced with a new numbers game that would benefit the government and local communities.

70 Filipinos get $1M for speaking Tagalog

DELANO, California—Spoken at Filipino hospitals and in California will share a nearly $1-million settlement in a lawsuit claiming they were targeted by a work rule requiring English only at work.

The settlement involves nearly 70 nurses and medical staff members who accused Delano Regional Medical Center (DRMC) in California's Kern County of barring them from speaking Tagalog and other Filipino languages while letting other workers speak in their native languages, including Spanish.

The US Equal Opportunity Employment Commission announced.

"Shouldn't it be easier to get out of a bad marriage, divorce being so common?" The British philosopher David Gifford says that the divorce rate in the United States is 50 percent, but that doesn't mean that half of all marriages are bad. "It means that half of all marriages are bad at the point of divorce," he says. "It's not a good measure of marital commitment."

Some cops turn bad; others help deliver baby at station

the baby was,* Larry recalled.

The delivery was over in 30 minutes and nurses still managed to walk a few steps to a nearby store. She was later brought to Queen's City General Hospital along with her Mom.

In an interview on Tuesday, nurses said he and his baby were doing fine, and recalled Brainerd's experience with delight.

"They [the previous personnel] said it was the first time that a baby was born in their office. They even took photos of me and my baby," the mother said.

"Some of these may be bad, but not all," he said. "I don't know if the police force has been really hit as much as it has been said to be. Many of us are just willing to help and serve."

Unfazed by 'sin' tax

TSCKOK Andrew Tan's beverage unit this year (Doritos Inc. joined a former year in 2009). The firm will also present more information on "sin" products about its marketing strategy. Tan doesn't see the new tax measures posing EOI to consumers.

Tan told executives of Alliance Global Group Inc. yesterday that the new tax on sin will bring additional revenue to the government, which he believes is a positive tax on the purchasing power of the economy, which means higher taxes will be imposed on alcohol-based products as high-growth and lower taxes will be imposed on lower-growth products.

So far as we are concerned, I think we will always be competitive because the new law, I think, will actually level the playing field," Tan said. "It's because the existing law gives preference to certain products than the new law will actually level out the playing field, except that it'll have a small pain in the stomach in a very good position to continue to compete in the market," he said.

EOI reported to contribute about P1 billion in new net profit to AGI this year, not far from the P1.5 billion lost of 10 percent margin, it stated. Mining boom possible in PH, says Belmonte

Isabela, Ifugao get P72M from SN Aboitiz

But mining revenue legislation not expected to pass this year

By Vilmarie Nolasco
Special Features Editor

MANILA, Isabela.—SN Aboitiz Power Management Inc. (SNAPM) has paid the provincial governments of Isabela and Ifugao P72 million in 2008 for the first operation of the Magat hydroelectric power plant complex here.

Michael Huallin, SN Aboitiz vice president for corporate affairs, said in a briefing here that the payment represents the first real property taxes, which is paid following a court-ordered agreement with local officials.

Huallin said SN Aboitiz started over last week a check worth P70.25 million to Isabela treasurer Hilda Theresa Flores and Board Member Karan Flores.

Fluores, through Gen. Eugene Balmaceda, received P42.15 million, he said.

"SNAPM wanted to pay the right and properly and that the local government was made sure that this was paid,"

Huallin said.

As a responsible corporate citizen, SN Aboitiz has always been vigilant about complying with all our tax and regulatory obligations," said General Manager of Isabela, SN Aboitiz chief executive officer.

"Through the increased and property tax, we hope in being successful growth and development in our host communities, and continue to make a difference in the lives of Isabelanos and Ifuganos. We also hope that as our business continues to expand, we can continue to contribute to the development of Isabela and Ifugao," Huallin said.

SNAPM operates the power components of the 380-megawatt Magat hydroelectric dam and maintains its power-producing facilities in the area complex here.

Aside from real property taxes, the company has also been paying business taxes to the local governments of Isabela and Ifugao since 2008.

THE PHILIPPINES has the potential for a mining boom, similar to that seen in China and India, but legislation on taxation should be prioritized to pave the way for investment, House Speaker Feliciano R. Belmonte said yesterday during the opening of the 2011 Philippine 2012 Conference and Exhibition.

To support the mining industry, he said the 15th Congress is studying all issues, including proposed legislation on progressive taxation and the economic provisions of the Constitution that may limit investments.

However, Belmonte said, it is not likely that mining revenue legislation will be passed this year.

"This means it has to go through a long process," he said. "The taxation issue should be a priority bill. But I don't believe we have the full set of our hands right now," Belmonte said.

Belmonte said he would follow up on the proposed bill with Environment Secretary Bayan, 28th Page, who leads the industry group (IM-ing Industry Coordinating Council) that is coming up with concrete programs and proposed legislation based on the general provisions of Executive Order 79 on mining reforms.

Belmonte said that the recent Congress effectively stops in the end of February, ahead of local and national mid-term elections.

"There is time for the mining industry to submit its own paper and get it out together," Belmonte said.

During his speech, Belmonte said, "It is our confidence that the mining bill back China and India can be replicated in the Philippines. If the right strategies are pursued and the necessary accompanying reforms are carried out, both countries have large mining reserves that serve their domestic markets, employ millions of workers and drive economic growth."

"The GDP per capita in India and China grew at impressive annual rates of 3.7 percent and 3.3 percent, respectively, during the 1990s, well above most other mining countries," the report quoted.

of mineral production in China was possibly be achieved in a combination of long-term control planning and the dynamic forces created by the market economic growth of each mining enterprise," Belmonte said.

"Meanwhile, India is an example of a country with a large and well-developed sector in the mining industry."

EO 79 is part of a series of measures to reform the mining industry.

"We need to involve resource-sharing between as much as possible," he said.

From 2008 to 2011, the mining sector contributed roughly 2 percent a year to the domestic economy, but more will, rising government revenue.

In 2011, mining's contribution to gross domestic product, reached P99.2 billion, he said.

Mining-related jobs, meanwhile, increased from 118,000 in 2008 to 219,000 in 2011, Belmonte said.

"The mining industry has also contributed to the revenue of the government. The President himself noted in his third SOA that the sector added more than 200,000 jobs, out of P140 billion total production value derived from mining, P13.4 billion or 9 percent went to the national treasury," Belmonte said.

According to the Mines and Geosciences Bureau, the Philippines has an estimated 14 billion tons of metals and minerals and over 40 billion tons of non-metallics are deposits.

In terms of reserves, the Philippines is third in the world in gold and fourth in copper and nickel.

Improvements on LRT line 1 under way

By Paolo S. Pimentale

IMPROVEMENTS on the three-kilometer Light Rail Transit (LRT) line 1 finally started following a local construction firm's successful bid to secure the contract for a key component of the rehabilitation project.

As a matter of record published on Thursday, the Department of Transportation and Communications (DOTC) announced that phase 2 of the LRT line 1's comprehensive safety, rehabilitating and upgrading project was given its final approval by the Philippine and the Department of Transportation.

The contracting of the phase 2 contract comes more than three months after the five-phase LRT line 1 rehabilitation project was announced.

The contract worth P104.70 million involves the replacement of low tension the replacement of girders and bolts that run through 22 kilometers of the LRT line 1's original section from Balintawak to Tomas Morán, Calabarzon. The previous approved budget for the phase 2 project was P150 million.

In a related provision, the DOTC said the project, which had to be completed within 18 months, will deliver the electricity used by the line, have completed after October of 2012.

The replacement of the 22 kilometers of low tension girders was supposed to start last March and be done in three years.

Other phases of the LRT line 1 rehabilitation project include the replacement of 22 kilometers of track, which were installed when the LRT 1 was first built.

This will cost the government P381 million and will take more than a year to complete.

The DOTC has also awarded an additional P34 million for the procurement of modified "single" houses, or dorms, that support the car bodies, protection, suspension, landing and other systems.

The fourth phase will cover the rehabilitation of 25 kilometers of the line, which are still in use, while the final phase involves the P157 million replacement of 14 kilometers that are no longer running due to damage and other defects.

Aside from the rehabilitation of the existing line, the government also plans to extend the LRT line 1 from Marikina to Carmona—a project that will cost more and its overall project cost is a total of P700 million.

Shell, Ferrari celebrate 500th Formula One race in Singapore

By Chester E. Rubin

When the Formula One race arrives in the event series of Singapore this weekend, the Ferrari Shell partnership marks the 500th anniversary of racing for the 100th time.

The collaboration, which is regarded as the longest and most successful partnership in Formula One, has brought more than a few moments along the way—12 drivers' championships, 30 constructor's crowns and over 150 race victories.

Ferrari and Shell have been partners for almost as long as the history of car racing. Shell first began collaborating with Enzo Ferrari (the Ferrari company founder) in 1929 by supplying fuel and lubricants for the team.

From that foundation, Shell was the obvious choice when Ferrari established the legendary team and manufacturing company Ferrari S.p.A. in 1947. When the very first Ferrari—the 125 F1—drove out of the factory gates in Maranello, Italy, it was already powered and proven by Shell.

Shell has commemorated a special day to mark the 500th race anniversary. Furthermore, a five-minute film will be shown in Singapore, which features interviews with Luca Badoer, Michael Schumacher, Luca Badoer, St. Remond Alami, Felipe Massa, John Edwards and the first man ever to win a Formula One race for Ferrari: Nino Farina, José Froilán Gutiérrez.

It will also be an exciting day for the international motor media as Shell presents its latest innovation at 4.30 p.m. at the F1 paddock: Shell Helix.

The motor media will be invited to watch drivers drive Shell's Formula One cars in the Singapore Grand Prix. They will also enjoy the Shell Helix Exposure with special viewing from Shell's engineers.

Throughout the two weekend in Singapore, Ferrari will race with a special 500 race livery on the first and last race of the 2012 (Formula One) season.

Moreover, a Ferrari F1 Challenge has been specially branded with the name logo and will be driven by Formula One test driver Maroone in the supporting Italian Challenge race.

On Sunday, Shell's latest innovation, Shell Helix, will power in Formula One's Ferrari, Michael Schumacher, Alonso and Felipe Massa's specially customized motorsport printing by renowned designers and Shell's Ferrari team, which will be presented in the pit lane at 5:30 p.m. before the latest round of the Shell-Ferrari partnership.

As it now stands, Ferrari's F1 cars are used as the ultimate test bed for developing Shell's V-power racing fuel including the lubricants used in the engine and transmission. These cars are also utilized to evaluate and speed up the development of products that power and lubricate road-going vehicles.

Ford's model history, though not as seemingly impressive, continues to improve as with their ability and when they are active, as compared to what they do not have. An awakening if you will, and with a history that is equally impressive, competitors and sports car to customers (Jaguar also Le Mans winning 1970, 1982, 1983 and 1984). Meanwhile, it seems as if Mazda has been born again. Last Wednesday, Sept. 12, Mazda signed a co-branding agreement with the Malaysian Services Group, a private conglomerate that includes real estate, education, food, entertainment and gaming as their key business interests. Along with automotive interests. In Malaysia, the Services Group took over the Mazda dealership in 2008, when Mazda sold sales were barely 3000 units per annum. It is now at 5,000 units per annum. Services Group, an old hand to managing big sales because of his role as one of Mazda's regional executives, will take charge as the new Services Automotive Philippines.

ing that the trading for Mazda in the Philippines has been on, and that since January 1, 2012, the transaction will be seamless and imperceptible to the public, media and suppliers alike. I do hope, however, that this also means changes like:

Better, faster and more efficient Mazda servicing. This means that the pleasure of talking to an ever happy sales staff for their Mazda, for which they also have servicing will be better, cheaper and faster. It is not that the current Mazda sales staff are not good, but that they are not good enough to be able to do so. EDUCATION Rottweiler Kiana is wearing a cooling jacket to prevent a proper harness—the best way to travel.

FOR PRIORITY pets, consider transporting them in a suitable kennel. Get them used to it in a few days before your trip.

THE TRADITIONAL basket is one way to keep the dog restrained in the back seat... but the best way is still with a proper harness.

The truth about cars and dogs

How to safely transport pets inside your vehicle

By Jason K. Day

THE CLASSICS Images of a dog in a car, immobilized in a crash-test harness, TV commercials and even The Hot Side routine, all depict the pet happily sitting in the front seat, with its head sticking out the window. While that certainly looks fun, the truth is that car crashes, which are also pet safety issues, are far more dangerous to keep kids themselves and their lives inside their cars than the truth. Here are the most important ones.

Increasingly, the most important safety rules that apply to kids also apply to pets. With most crash helmets and special equipment before driving off, as with kids, the most important rule to put them in the back seat and use proper restraints. During a sudden stop or a crash, a pet that is sitting in the front seat, or more accurately, in your lap, will become a projectile, according to a study by Subaru, a collision at 60 mph, a 25-lb pet will have the crash force of 2000 to 3000 kg—the proverbial elephant in the back seat. Airbags are not a substitute for seatbelts, and for an unbeltped pet in the front seat, airbags can kill or cause serious injury. As seatbelts and child seats are designed for two-legged mammals and not their four-legged counterparts, the most important rule is to use proper restraints. like the new Ford F-150 have special cargo beds that hold hardware and equipment, those are not suitable for carrying pets, as the hard surfaces and exposure to the elements are not safe for the animals. "Animals have the added benefit of seeing as a comfort zone for their safety of traveling," says.

Prepare your pet

Get your pet used to traveling in a car by doing a series of short journeys, gradually lengthening the time that they spend in the car, and feeding your pet within three hours before a ride, and of course, have him relieve himself before the trip. You may also like to make arrangements before the ride, but being along a portable container for dogs that are not used to travel, such as a dog house, can be helpful. If you are traveling with a dog, it is important to have a plan for what to do if the dog is not used to travel, such as a dog house, can be helpful. If you are traveling with a dog, it is important to have a plan for what to do if the dog is not used to travel, such as a dog house, can be helpful.

Don't get distracted

A harness will have the added benefit of limiting your pet's movements within the vehicle, and because the chances that you will be distracted by having a pet in the car. According to one survey, an alarming 10 percent of dogs are not used properly restrained. They may seem to be the best pet in the car, but they are not used properly restrained. Moving like Jaguar

A year after building a new home for his premium brands, Willie Soong is eyeing more showrooms

OUTSIDE and inside the Jaguar Land Rover Bonifacio Lifestyle and Activity Centre at the Bonifacio Global City

THE JAGUAR Centre is its own lot.

Unlikely, it was a good beginning year for Jaguar only one house at Bonifacio Global City along with fellow luxury car brands Land Rover and Range Rover, the British luxury and sports car is rolling down quite nicely, even in marketing efforts in addition to the country's govt. car industry competition.

The SUV, however, officially entered by the Jaguar Land Rover Range Rover Lifestyle and Activity Centre, designed to help for its aggressive objectives as one changing, uncorrupted landscape and discerning customers that accept nothing but perfection.

One pioneer of continuously providing inspiring, competitive, and stylish lives for our loyal customers, because the more you offer your life more (a new place) has given us a better attitude to achieve the goals that we have set about the "Jaguar" and "Willie Soong, chairman and president of Jaguar Philippines."

The design started in our office because some of our ago, when he decided to sell along Old Pagal in Makati City. Last year, the partnership took a gamble and moved to a bigger lot. It's called the 8.4th Avenue, Cement Park, which is actually because of the need to have space to display a growing number of car brands under his watch.

The risk paid off. It was later on, after continued to pick up. Perhaps helping together these brands under one roof had also motivated the company's interest in bringing only the "premium brands" under his brand.

"The design has been geographically and architecturally designed to create good brand exposure and awareness to the thousands of executives and individuals who pass by the action-packed lot. It gives the car brands a chance to become more accessible and visible to people and elevate their status. Looking at Jaguar and Land Rover," Soong said.

While the old brands made the move last year, it was almost a pledge of the company's intention to stay for the long haul. The story does not end when a deal is made, Soong said. Instead, it marks the start of a generations-long relationship.

THE JAGUAR is a completely brand-led marketing design led by MD Cesar de la Rosa, chief business officer Mike Vito Acosta, marketing director John Christopher Estrella, alternative manager Ryo P. Espino, Jaguar Cars Inc. brand manager Rosalinda R. Garcia, and UPLab, Motors Inc. brand manager Ryo P. H. Nungoy.

This is why the living benefits for each of the brands. The design is a combination of possible, creating an atmosphere that potential clients and casual car buyers may admire, status, and even the luxury vehicles in recent car sales.

Butler is not a day, the company has come a long way. It does help that these vehicle brands represent the most successful companies - those - helping make it a lot easier for Soong and his group to work. The brands themselves guarantee a secure tomorrow for the company in 2013.

Modeled by the "Live the Dream, Drive the Challenge" campaign, Soong said that the industry should expect to see more showrooms for these premium car brands within the next few years.

According to Soong, "We started 2009 for Jaguar, and have received several economic crisis in the last 10 years in the '90s and the global market of 2008. We have not lost in this economic situation. I feel like we are taking our own path to success, creating our own life for other brands."

Comfortable condo living becomes affordable in QC

By Margo E. Karpovich

CITYLIFE PROPERTIES is setting a new standard for condominiums in Queens City with bigger, extended balconies and amenities aimed at enhancing the quality of life—at affordable prices.

"When I created the market, people were building my apartments. That's all they could afford," says Mario Ramirez, Century Properties' on-site operating officer. "In many developments, space is a luxury. And I'm paying for the convenience."

Commerceville by Germany is an eight-acre, mid-rise development on a 4.5-acre property along Commerceville Avenue, Queens City. The firm's proposition is that the project is creating value for money because the project offers more than what the competition provides.

"When it's turned over, I wouldn't mind raising a family and growing into that stock," says Roberts.

"The units are larger compared to the smaller units in the market," the CEO adds. "It is 21 sq m for a studio, 30-35 sq m for a one-bedroom unit, and 54-72 sq m for two bedrooms. The prices range from F1.5, F3 million and above US million for the two-bedroom units. Buyers also have the option to combine units if they prefer more space."

Extended notation

Germany pioneered its extended business hours for its units. "In many projects, there are no-tell latitudes where you go out for a cigarette or a quick drink or to open the window and let what you need. It's history in a typical unit would be not more than 15 percent of the total area. Our latitudes are in big, so 30-35 percent of unit. You can use it even they're evening. You can have a picnic table and a private bathroom. A working couple can read, and their kids don't have to be stuck in their rooms playing Nintendo."

Commonwealth is Century Properties' strategy to diversifying its market and price range. In the past 20 years, the company has been associated with thematic, heavy residential projects.

"This is not that affordable to date," says Amato. For a 33 sq m unit, the reservation fee is F12,000 and the monthly amount is

On its move to Quetzon City, Antonio says it's the second biggest city in the nation with the second-highest purchasing power. "Studies show there is more land to develop here, the demand from the population. There's quality land, and people in Quetzon City prefer to stay close because of their roots."

"By expanding the MFF line, it adds 11,000 sq ft of retailing. You will see the trend in the Philippines as the infrastructure are built. Communities will increase with new roads or power source systems."

Delivering help and hope to Filipino homes

AS A GESTURE OF DOING IT FORWARD, Handyman, a leading hardware store for quality home improvement tools, paint and other home accessories, recently took part in a charitable drive that helps industry professionals in help rebuild the lives of families in need one brick at a time. Through "Edificio Makabuu Home Edition Philippines" (EMHPP), a reality show aired every TV5 based on the popular American TV show, Handyman now-on-air course fills gaps locally and not continuously as they get back on the road to progress. According to "Edificio Makabuu" Annuncio, a full-blown program, which will come in the form of a reality show in the Philippines, and will promote the General Building. The project director of Building Makabuu in Davao del there, he was inspired upon hearing that "EMHPP" will help build and renovate a number of houses in the country.

"The residents here were displaced as a result of the construction of the new and old building," Annuncio explained.

"EMHPP" built duplex-type units for 20 families and painted them in bright, vibrant colors.

"On behalf of the community, I am extending my gratitude to Handyman for their contribution," Annuncio said.

Annuncio came crashing into the life of Camille "Mick" Belasco at a time when she thought the world was for nothing else. At 18, Belasco found a quiet and successful life with her husband, Lou, and 10-year-old daughter, Ann. She works as an accountant and lives in their modern 120-sq-m house in Lantana, Marikina, built by her parents in the '90s. Life was uncomplicated until she was diagnosed with stage 2 breast cancer.

"I was devastated," Belasco recalled. Then Goddy spoke in 2008. "I just had my therapy and chemotherapy. The doctor always thought was, 'I cannot go with you, but I can't wait until you're recovered,'" she explained.

During her daughter's time in the hospital, she was taken away in a mobile home and one of the most painful moments left behind by the disaster. After the recovery of their house, Belasco was almost in tears when Handyman handled their exactly what they needed for a better life.

"We gave them and her family an 800-sq-ft inflatable tent which is high in price, money and easy to maintain," said Ann. In fact, Handyman's marketing manager, Richard, said in the package were the best pump, repair kit, and cushions, and carrying bag.

With a newly furnished house, the calm life and the future can finally be seen. Belasco is ready to go back to work. "So many people went out of their way to help me and my family when we needed it most," she said.

Why it's important for families to share meals

A Columbia University study proved that 'the more often kids eat dinner with their families, the less likely they are to smoke, drink or use drugs'

Audrey Tan-Zabari

MAMA DIARIES

WHEN WAS the last time you ate together as a family? Was it last night or breakfast today?

Oh, as in the reality with many Filipino families today, was it a week ago. On the nights off from the grueling shift of the mother working in a call-center? A month ago, when the head of the family was home from abroad? Or is it over a year, when the working mother is able to head home from the city to her hometown, where the family she supports is staying?

Once upon a time, eating together as a family was the norm. The table, for many families, has become the exception, rather than the rule—interrupted by phone calls or by circumstances.

It's easy to overlook the effects of a family meal, especially when the parents are busy trying to make sure there is a meal on the table in the first place. But in 2011, the National Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse (CASA) at Columbia University came out with a groundbreaking study which "consistently found that the more adolescents share with their families, the less likely they are to smoke, drink or use drugs."

This led to CASA's creation of "Family Day: A Day to Eat Dinner With Your Children." Every year, on the fourth Monday of September, parents and children are encouraged to go home early and have dinner together. Family Day, while being a once-a-year event, is a reminder that frequent, if not regular, family dinners throughout the year can make a significant difference in the fight against addiction and substance abuse.

Here in the Philippines, this advocacy was adopted by Shonda Smith, the mother of Lucky Me! In October 2009, through the launch of "Eatting Family Malabago," a program aimed at building a stronger nation by developing stronger Filipino families. This year, 24 will be the 8th annual "Family Day." This, even our advocacy slogan are more fun in the Philippines!

Family Day

Family Day is supported by Presidential Proclamation 11918 and a partnership with the Department of Social Welfare and Development and the National Commission on the Filipino Family.

To commemorate the 8th anniversary of "Family Day," Francis King, a noted inspirational speaker and teacher, has published a coffee-table book, "Family Diaries," to celebrate the "magic of sharing meals" and invited 50 families to share their own stories. Among the families he invited are those of vice leader Teddy Aguirre-Cruz and my fellow PDI columnist Cathy Salinas-Gaballa and Dr. Queenie

'Bwakaw' gears up for Oscars

"It's a huge honor ... It's going to be a lot of work, but nothing that we can't handle," says director Jun Lana.

By Maribel R. Cruz

IT'S "very Filipino theme with a universal effect" helped pave the way for Jun Lana's acclaimed drama, "Bwakaw," to be chosen as the country's entry in the best foreign language film category of next year's 86th Oscar awards.

"This was something to dream about," Lana said. He is a member of the academy, was winning nomination for the film "Bwakaw" in the Philippines (2012)—the group looked to select the best entry to the Oscars.

"Bwakaw" is the story of a gay relationship between Bibbo (Dante Garcia) and his pet dog. "It's a huge honor ... It's going to be a lot of work, but nothing we can't handle," Lana said.

He added, "We have a very subtle story about, for example, films, in such as, and 407 films, my reputation is already established in this area, having campaigned for the film 'Bwakaw' in the Philippines (2012) for a long time ago."

Next month, "Bwakaw" will be showcased at the New York 2013 International Film Festival and will compete at the Venice Film Festival.

Lana, who will attend the New York fest with Garcia, said, "We prefer doing a bit of our Oscar campaign. From New York, the leading message is to have more films and I think they're fantastic opportunities to take more attention about our film." Garcia, who is "Bwakaw" star, said "Bwakaw" was chosen from a short list of eight films chosen "to promote various topics, such as old age and death, in a light manner."

He added that the comedy movie "Bwakaw" was also "the most" with the production of Garcia, his director, Arnela Regalado Reyes and the film "Bwakaw."

Every country is allowed to submit as many as five films to the Oscars to compete for the Oscar statuette. Garcia said, "It's a great honor to be in the Oscar for consideration," Garcia said, "It's a great honor to be in the Oscar for consideration."

"Bwakaw" won the best actor award in the film festival in the Philippines (2012) for a long time ago. The film was chosen to be the country's entry to the 2013 International Film Festival in Canada under the contemporary world cinema category. (P) www.jollibee.com.ph
